Cycle of Safety and Exploration

How nursery teachers keep an eye on the Children's needs and support them in their explorations

Give me protection and comfort

when I am in an uncomfortable situation, give me the feeling that you notice my worries and needs.

Give me time to trust you. Give me reliable closeness and security. Show your interest and respect for me just as I am.

A safe place

The nursery teacher realizes the importance of giving the children the feeling of assurance and care. She supports a child's exploration and playful educational attainment in a sensitive way. She is at all times group oriented, emphatic, sensitive, appreciative and authentic. When possible she pays individual attention to the children's needs. When necessary she analyses the children's behavior and reflects on the pedagogical process.

Give me security

so that I can cope with being separated from my parents, so that I can discover the world independently, experience new things and improve my social abilities.

I need your help to learn how to cope with my feelings and to be aware of my boundaries.
